ALL TUCKED UP

Luxury bedroom specialist And So To Bed have collaborated with Tytherington-based interior designer Rachel Bates to create the stunning H el ene bedstead, an exclusive piece which brings together Rachel's design flair with And So To Bed's craftsmanship skill.

The H el ene represents Rachel's vision of her dream bedstead. Throughout the creative process Rachel was inspired by both her love of antique furniture and the Baroque and Rococo eras synonymous with the Chateau de Versailles.

You can meet Rachel on 10 March at House of Fraser Manchester, when, along with Wayne Clark, Creative Director of And So To Bed she will be chatting about her fabulous bed and the inspiration behind it. The Q&A session will enable you to ask questions about this and other beds in the And So To Bed range and quiz Rachel about any interior design challenges you may be facing, all while sipping on fizz! Pop along between 1pm – 2pm or 6pm-7pm and be inspired.

By the people for the people

Everyone loves a product with a good story to tell. Launching their debut collection for SS16, the team at The People's Emporium work with talented individuals from the British Isles, Europe, Africa and beyond to create beautiful homewares for British homes.

The People's Emporium was born out of a desire to know how and where homewares products were made. Between the two extremes of mass production and smaller, un-contemporary 'ethnic' looks, Cheshire-based founders Laura Fearnall and Claire Hamer-Stubbs saw a gap in the market for beautiful, highly contemporary products that could be traced back to the hands that made them.

DESIGN REVIVAL

G-Plan Vintage is a collection inspired by original pieces from G-Plan's mid-century archive and created in collaboration with celebrated British design team Hemingway Design.

This month, G-Plan have added a fabulous new corner design to its iconic Fifty-Nine range, inspired by a collection first released in 1959.

In a range of rich shades of emerald, topaz, copper, berry and flamingo and in velvet, leather or soft cotton plus four choices of show wood, the angular sofas are bang on trend for 2016.
